Covers 3.UL.1 3.UL.4 3.MLC.2 Indonesians do not use "half past" like we do. They use "half to" the next hour.	Half Past, Quarter to In this lesson we will learn how to tell the time at different parts of the hour such as, half past, quarter to, quarter past and the differences between the Indonesian and the English uses of past and to when talking about time.	The Indonesian word for half is "setengah", but there is a difference in how they use it for time compared to the way we do. Instead of "half past" they use "half to" e.g. 1.30 in English would be half past one, but Indonesians would read this as half an hour to two. .The word "setengah" means half to the next hour. e.g. 1.30 jam setengah dua 6.30 jam setengah tujuh. .jam berapa sekarang? What's the time now?	The Indonesian word for half is "setengah", but there is a difference in how they use it for time compared to the way that we do. Instead of "half past" they use "half to". Look at the examples below. 2:30 we would say "half past 2". In Indonesian it would be said as "half an hour to 3" 4:30 would be "half to" five [[300.21] Totag Totag Lamon 3.000.2]	Look at these examples. 2.30: We would say "half past 2". In Indonesian it would be said as "half an hour to 3" 4.30 would be "half to" five
	Drag and Drop the time Drag and drop the clock onto the target above the correct time. Jam setengah jam setengah daa belas jam setengah delapan jam setengah enam	11.30 = jam setengah dua belas 1.30 = jam setengah dua 7.30 = jam setengah delapan 6.30 = jam setengah enam	Drag and drop the clock on the correct translation
	Can you work out the time? Jam berapa sekarang? a - 6:30 b - 4:30 c - 2:30 d - 12:30	6.30 = jam setengah tujuh 4.30 = jam setengah lima 2.30 = jam setengah tiga 12.30 = jam setengah satu	Try these yourself. Write the time using, "jam setengah
